2nd floor is warm and inviting in the Bleached Oak finish (real wood veneer). Here, too, the room derives its energy from the fusion of ceramic, acrylic and wood – the symbiosis of elegance and comfort. Everything stays spic and span thanks to plenty of great storage ideas, like the wall-mounted board below the washbasin and the drawer integrated into the bathtub panelling, which creates a convenient space for towels and toiletries.

Consistently rectangular consistently successful: solid surfaces is the archetype of minimalist form and a modern classic.

Sense

Another “floating” object: the side panel of the PuraVida mirror cabinet tapers towards the back to again create the impression of utter weightlessness. The sense of spaciousness also prevails when the cabinet doors are opened: the rear panel and insides of the doors are mirrored and there are lights and double sockets behind an aluminium panel at the top. (below left) A flush-mounted light in the mirrors ensures optimum illumination.
